Jaya Sri Guru! Jaya Sri Gopala!
Jaya Sri Go Mata!

Dear Friends,

“Just as a cow cannot deliver sufficient milk without being affectionate to her calf, the earth cannot produce sufficient necessities without feeling affection for those who are Krsna conscious.

Even though the earth’s being in the shape of a cow may be taken figuratively, the meaning herein is very explicit. Just as a calf can derive milk from a cow, all living entities—including animals, birds, bees, reptiles and aquatics--can receive their respective foods from the planet earth, provided that human beings are not asat. When human society becomes asat, or ungodly, or devoid of Krsna consciousness, the entire world suffers.

If human beings are well-behaved, animals will also receive sufficient food and be happy. The ungodly human being, ignorant of his duty to give protection and food to the animals, kills them to compensate for the insufficient production of grains. Thus no one is satisfied, and that is the cause for the present condition in today’s world.”

CELEBRATING GOV

YARDHANA PUJA

Govardhana Puja is the day Sri Krsna is worshipped in the form of Govardhana Hill which is located in Vraja Mandala. Having felt slighted by Sri Krsna, Indra flooded Vraja Mandala with rain creating chaos for the cows and cowherd community. This calamity inspired the Vrajavasis to take full shelter of Sri Krsna and beg for His protection. In response Sri Krsna lifted Govardhana Hill and placed it on the tip of his small finger and held it like an umbrella for seven days to protect His devotees from the wrath of Indra. The history can be found in Chapters 24-26 in Krsna Book.

This year we celebrated this wonderful occasion in conjunction with Vrindavan Food for Life at their ten-acre compound in Kiki Nagla. We began with kirtana of Sri Krsna's holy names performed by students of the Sandipani Muni School, then hearing from His Holiness Bhakti Vishrambha Madhava Maharaja about Sri Krsna's cow-herding pastimes, worshipping the cows and serving them a feast and finally serving a sumptuous feast to all the guests. The following pages offer a glimpse of the joy to be found in celebrating the wonderful pastimes of Sri Krsna.

The Vrindavan Food for Life cooks are famous for their talent to cook sumptuous preparations for hundreds, if not thousands of people at a time. On Govardhan Puja day they prepared a delicious eight-course feast for three hundred.

RESCUE ATTEMPT

This abandoned brown cow was struck on the rump by a reckless driver and left to fend for herself with her four-month-old calf. As the days went by crows picked at her injured rectum devouring most of the external tissue creating and ideal environment for flies to lay eggs and hatch maggots which, in turn, complicated and expanded the injury. In her weakened state she tried to feed herself and provide for her calf but after a week she collapsed and was unable to get up. Care for Cows was called to the rescue and she was treated by two vets upon arrival.

Besides her renal injury she had several gashes, the most serious one on her udder. She was covered with ticks and weakened by famine and blood loss. The vets also suspected internal injuries.

It took several dressings to get all the maggots out and we were hopeful as the cow had a good appetite. We kept her in a private room with her calf and four men assisted her to stand so she could walk in the sun during the day. After four days of healthy food she could get up by herself and nurse her calf.

Her renal injury complicated elimination and it appeared that there was permanent damage to the area. She began to fast and after two days gave up the desire to live and departed.

Her calf bellowed for a day after her burial but has integrated well enough with the other calves. She has also been adopted by Alena Pimenova.

BELVAN

Our herd at Belvan now numbers one hundred-seventy-five. Last year we put up a boundry wall which allowed the herd to use areas of the goshalla property providing them more room. This year we are again expanding the area they can use by building another perimeter wall which will provide an area for the calves and elderly members of the herd and serve to protect the goshalla from the flooding since the property is only three-hundred meters from the Yamuna.

The pristine natural atmosphere of the Belvan facility is a boon for the herd. From May to October they have the priveledge of swimming across the Yamuna and grazing in the vacant fields in the vast basin. This is a great luxury for them. The fifteen-minute swim accross the river in the morning and afternoon serve to remove ticks and other parasites.

Below: The herd anxiously awaits the gates to open so they can go out to graze.

REPORT

Left: We are constructing a fourteen-inch wall with reinforced concrete pillars every ten feet. Although the Belvan goshalla has never yet flooded, we are taking precaution as the shastra mentions that one should never trust a river.

Tilak is one of our first residents and he is now helping with the construction.
